The loan will carry the usual rate of interest ruling at the time it is sanctioned and will be repayable over a period of 30 years. For the first five years interest only will be payable. Thereafter, principal and interest will be repayable in 25 equated annul instalments.

It is not possible to give an indication at present of the details or programme of execution of the electrification schemes to be taken up against these loans, as the matter is under examination by the Government with reference to the conditions and terms attaching to each of these loans. Also the schemes, big and small, will be hundreds in numbers.
